

Sören Urbansky is a professor of East European History at Ruhr University Bochum, Germany. He is an expert on the history of Chinese-Russian relations. His research interests include migration, infrastructures, racism, and the history of borders. From 2018 to 2023, he worked at the German Historical Institute Washington, initially as a research fellow in global and transnational history in Washington, DC, and since 2021, as the head of its Pacific Office at the University of California, Berkeley. Prior he held teaching and research positions at the Universities of Freiburg, Cambridge, and Munich. He has authored three monographs, including Beyond the Steppe Frontier: A History of the Sino-Russian Border, published by Princeton University Press in 2020. Urbansky is also a regular contributor to both German and international media.
